Surrounding businesses help create an image.

Finding the perfect location for the Animal Medical & Surgical Center was at the top of Dr. Charles Pullen's priority list when he set out to build his hospital. In order to project a state-of-the-art image, he wanted his veterinary practice to be surrounded by other professional buildings, not gas stations and fast food restaurants. "I wanted the community to know how sophisticated veterinary medicine has become," Dr. Pullen says. He also wanted the location to be a comfortable place for clients to bring their pets. The Perimeter Center, the business park where the practice is located, is a development of professional office buildings ranging from 8,000 square feet to over 100,000 square feet.
